Dave Martin, R. N. Fultz, H. D. Davis, W. R. McDonald, Wm. Lambdin.

TUESDAY CLUB

On Tuesday afternoon, March 25th the Tuesday Club met at the home of Mrs. Edward Faulkner on Main St. Sixteen members answered roll call with current events concerning the U. S. Navy and about Armenia and the near east which were appropriate for the following program:

"Achievements of the U. S. Navy in this War." Mrs. J. D. Tuggle Piano Solo, Mrs. W. S. Hudson.

"The History and Future of Armenia." Mrs. Guy Dickinson.

Mrs. Wm. Barr Minton, the leader for the day, gave a splendid talk and passed around pictures of places in Armenia and its people. This program was most interesting as it prepared the members for the lecture about the East given by Ehli Kitab on Wednesday night.

The word test after the literary program was very unique and familiarized the members with dozens of new words made during the war. Quite a lot of business was discussed and the Club decided to give individually to the Kitchen Shower given by the Parent Teachers Association Friday, April 11th, for the benefit of the Domestic Science Class which is being taught at the High School.

During the social part of the meeting several minutes were spent in reading the amusing quotations provided by the hostess. Iced refreshments were served. The colors were yellow and white. Yellow spring flowers were used to decorate the room.

WOMANS STUDY CLUB

The Womens Study Club was entertained by Mrs. James Arthur Williams on Tuesday afternoon April 1st. There were sixteen members present.

The first hour of the meeting was devoted to business, one topic especially enlisting the interest of all, that of answering call of the American Red Cross to make more garments for the refugees. Most all the members pledged themselves to make six garments.

The Committee whose task it is to select a course of study for next year submitted several courses but the matter was held over until the next meeting. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. Marcum
Vice-Pres., Mrs. G. W. Tye
Secretary, Mrs. James Golden
Treasurer, Mrs. J. D. Tuggle
Critic, Mrs. S. T. Steele

The next lecture and demonstration at the High School by Mrs. Potter and Miss Tonnenday will be given on Tuesday afternoon, Apr. 22, at 2:30 o'clock. Subjects: Bread and their uses. Sandwich Demonstration. The School Lunch Demonstration.

The Womens Study Club invites all those interested to be present.

Many citizens claim that a meteor passed over Barbourville Wednesday at noon in the form of a ball of fire accompanied by an explosive sound.

CHARLES W. GARLAND HOME.

Charles W. Garland, of Jarvis Store, son of Mrs. Mary Margaret Kibard, is home from overseas, following eighteen months service with Company D. 331st infantry and other regiments, and including five months in France. He carries a sharpshooters medal, but his rank is that of a horse shoer. He was not on the front, but was engaged as sharpshooter instructor to new levies from the States.

Mr. Garland visited England and Scotland and says that he had some good times but is glad to be home.

MARRIAGE LICENSES

Floyd Hubbard & Loudema Gambrell of Eroze.

Frank Beddow and Lula Woods, Barbourville.

Letcher May and Jane Patton, of Artemus.

Geo. Lee, Jr. and Susie Jones, of Wheeler and Goins, respectively. Victor Carnes and Tuillie Williams, son, of Dewitt.

GLAD THEY ARE HOME.

Mrs. James M. Clodfelder and three little daughters, Covey, Edith and Ruth, of Bradel, have been visiting Mrs. Clodfelder's sister, Mrs. D. W. Ellison, of Harlan, Ky., also her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Taylor Poff, of Wooldridge, Tenn., are home again, much to the delight of James M., who has been "batching" and doesn't like it.

CANNON NEWS

Upon seeing the word Cannon one at once assumes that it means one of the type of guns with which we whipped the Germans but in this case it simply means the name of a post office situated on the C. & M. R. R. four miles from Barbourville. This strictly speaking a farming community but there is quite a bit of mining carried on and there are at least five mining operations of more or less importance about four of which are in active operation. There is also quite a bit of different kinds of timber shipped out. We have a church, school, grist mill and a general merchandise store. The great majority of our people are prosperous and happy and are deeply interested in better farming methods, better schools and especially better roads. For further particulars address W. D. M. at the above post office.

Floyd Chadwell, Henry Gibson, G. Jackson and W. D. Martin are attending the Knox Circuit Court this week.

Ed Miracle and wife were visiting the family of Finley Valentine last Sunday.

Geo. McDonald was visiting his daughter in Barbourville this week.

We have very promising prospects for a good peach crop for all of which we are very glad.

The Writer knows of a 9 to 12 ft. vein of coal in this district that is waiting to be developed.

Jackson Bros. have contracted to furnish the C. & M. R. R. Co. 80 tons, more or less, of coal per week, to coal their engines. They built a special coal tippie for the purpose.

We respectfully call the attention of the Fiscal Court to the bridge across Richland Creek just above the Trace Branch Church house.

The three young daughters of Mrs. M. Conner, of Barbourville, were visiting their sister Mrs. D. Broughton last Saturday.

Within the radius of a country school district here we have seven school teachers, (good ones too) and three preachers, (good ones also, at least we think all preachers ought to be.)

William Martin, who is taking a normal course at Union College walking back and forth from here to Barbourville daily, insists that an education is worth all it costs in hardships and money.

CIVIC LEAGUE

The Civic League met Thursday week at the home of Mrs. J. D. Black with thirty two members and two visitors present.

After the business meeting a most enjoyable social hour was spent during which Mrs. W. C. Black rendered two delightful piano selections and Mrs. W. S. Hudson gave great pleasure with two vocal solos. Mrs. Costello made a complimentary speech in regard to Mrs. R. W. Cole's faithful service during her five years presidency of the Civic League, whereupon Mrs. J. R. Tuggle sprang a surprise on Mrs. Cole by presenting her in well chosen words with a beautiful silver tray, a gift of the members of the Civic League which should serve as a token of their loving esteem and as a mark of their appreciation of her splendid work for her home, city and people.

The hostess served delicious refreshments and presented Mrs. Cole with a necklace improvised from the cards of the guests present.

Funeral of Mrs. Greenman

The funeral of Mrs. Fannie Catron Greenman took place from her old home church, Methodist Episcopal, Thursday, April 10th. Rev. S. F. Kelly, assisted by Rev. A. H. Davis, pastor of the church, performing the last sad rites. The eight brothers of Mrs. Greenman acted as pall-bearers having come from different parts of the country to attend the funeral. Interment was in the City Cemetery.

The many friends of Mrs. Greenman (nee Fannie Catron) showed much emotion over the passing of their friend at the early age of twenty-nine years. She was born July 16, 1890, and died in San Francisco, April 2, 1919, following her husband who died in January. Both deaths were caused by influenza.

COMMUNITY SERVICE CONFERENCE

The Conference opened Sunday night at the Christian Church when Rev. F. O. Clark, of Berea, delivered an excellent address.

On Monday, with Rev. W. L. Baker of the Y. M. C. A. as efficient chairman, Rev. J. C. Taylor, of Stanford, Ky., was called on and contributed a thoughtful and eloquent talk on "What the Soldiers and Sailors can do for Knox County."

He stressed good roads which the boys have now seen as essential to progress. This is a county rich in natural resources but poor in roads. The speaker urged a building for the youth of the county where they may find clean recreation.

Mr. Baker announced that an education in vocational training awaits any crippled or disabled soldier or sailor who desires it, coupled with $65.00 per month for single men and $100.00 per month for married men.

In the afternoon Judge Robison outlined the plan for Federal Aid for good roads as reported in last weeks issue and was frequently applauded.

The ladies of the Parent Teachers Association served luncheon to the boys and delegates at noon at the front of the Court House.

At night the boys were entertained at Union College by the different city organizations with an excellent supper and speech making. Sixty-five soldiers with their friends (not boy friends) were well fed when Judge S. B. Dishman made a happy welcoming address which was responded to by Dr. Leslie Logan and Bennie Dishman, son of his dad.

A further address of welcome was delivered by Judge F. D. Sampson in a most eloquent manner.

Two hundred people were present and Miss Nola Minton who acted as cashier lady reported the receipt of the nice sum of $50.00 which will be credited to the Memorial Fund.

Much credit is due to Mr. Sol T. Steele, the County Chairman, for the able manner in which he handled the affair, the best yet attended by Mr. Baker.

Miss Lalla Rookh Johnson was the hotel guest of Mrs. Metcalf in Pineville last week end.

MOOSE LODGE, TO BE STARTED

C. D. Chavis, of Corbin formerly of Flat Lick, has been spending some days here organizing a Moose Lodge. He shows a fine picture of Mooseheart, Ills., devoted to the care of orphans of the Order and where the mother may accompany her children who are trained vocationally.

Entrance fee $6.00, monthly dues $1.00. Benefits $7.00 per week during sickness and accident and $100 for burial expenses. Mr. Chavis expects to form a strong lodge here.

KILL THE FLIES

"Kill the winter flies," is the warning issued Saturday by Health Officer William H. Peters.

"Flies carry all kinds of diseases notably typhoid fever and tuberculosis.

"Destroy their breeding places. They lay their eggs in organic matter.

"Screen the windows and doors. You must protect the baby from the flies.

"Now is the time to begin the summer anti-fly crusade.

"A fly-swatter should be part of the equipment in every household."

BARBOURVILLE PUBLIC SCHOOLS

I have been asked by Prof. Oldfield for a few words of encouragement for the Public Schools of our city. I only wish that I had time and space to give full expression to my conviction on this matter. The Public School System is the greatest single force in all the world for democracy, and a governmental foundation for Christianity. In fact the Public Schools are the outgrowth of the works of Christianity. But for the church there would be no Public Schools, and on the other side, there cannot be a prosperous and democratic Christianity without a fine Public School system. It is impossible for the church or any other private organization to reach all the people, and we have a better civilization because the Private Schools and Public Schools work together for the education of the people.

But I understand we are face to face with a very serious matter pertaining to our City High School. We hear a part or all of the High School must be dropped from our City School unless we can have more adequate support financially. It would be nothing short of a calamity to drop the High School Department from our City School. Every boy and girl in our school district has a right to a High School Education at the expense of the general public. The city, state, or nation that fails to give the best education to its people impoverishes itself. It pays financially to spend large sums in the education of the people and in a day like this I am sure that we of Barbourville have too much pride to see our Public Schools fall short of the best. They have been growing very rapidly for the past few years and we must keep it up. I have the profound conviction that when the citizens of Barbourville have put before them the necessary steps to continue the High School Department they will do it cheerfully. All we need is to beshown the case as it is and as it needs to be and we will back up the Public Schools with energy and the necessary funds. So go to it Prof. Oldfield; give us the necessary information and we will be ready for the task.

E. T. Franklin.

PARENT TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

The regular meeting of the Parent Teachers Association will be held at two o'clock on Friday afternoon Apr. 11th. The public is invited.

The pupils are quite busy these bright spring days doing their share toward making the school grounds more attractive. The campus has been marked off into plots, and to each room has been assigned the privilege of keeping one plot in order and of improving it. Mrs. T. W. Minton has offered a prize to the room which produces the greatest improvement in its plot by the close of school.

MR. KITAB SPEAKS ON INDIA.

Mr. Kitab during his day stay in Barbourville described very wonderfully India's life and customs. Amongst the striking things he told, was a woman who according to her religious belief had to perform a painful pilgrimage to the Himalayan mountains. The whole of her weary journey she performed by measuring her full length, yard by yard, along the dusty road. Hundreds of miles were traversed. She had been promised by her teachers a vision of God and peace of mind when she reached the snow line. After her return to her home, some met and asked her,

"Had she reached her goal?"

"Yes."

"Had she seen the Deity?"

"Yes."

"Was she now satisfied?"

Her face saddened as she replied,

"mere dil ke liye bas nahin" (For my heart it was not enough).

Those who glorify these religions and place them on the same pedestal as Christianity know not of what they speak, continued the speaker. If their worshippers, the most devout of them, could voice their feelings, they would cry out in the words of the poor woman, "For my heart it is not enough."

It is true that each of these non-Christian religions have some good points and moral teaching. To fish without some kind of bait would be too obviously foolish. For instance, the pious Hindus and Buddhists will not touch meat, or take life. The Mohammedan will not touch liquor.

The moral maxims of some of their teachers make excellent texts to preach from, but when they are compared to the teachings of Christ, they are as rushlights compared to the sun. They have no promise of deliverance from sin.

The speaker also told of a child called Wallie who spent her nights sleeping upon the hills with other out-cast children, and spoke of how little Wallie remained unfed, and would drink of the muddy water of the river to save her from dying, but who was admitted to a Christian Mission by pleading, "will Jesus stand for Wallie? Will Jesus stand for Wallie?" He concluded that upon the streets of India are no less than 360,000 Wallies wishing to be admitted into a Christian Missionary Home.

GO YE THEREFORE

"Sudden, before my inward, open vision,
Millions of faces crowded up to view;
Sad eyes that said, 'For us is no provision;
Give us your Savior too.'"
"Give us," they cry, "your cup of consolation,
Never to our outstretched hands 'tis passed;
We long for the desire of every nation,
And, Oh, we die so fast."

FEDERAL BOARD FOR VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. R. W. Cole, Chairman, Home Service A. R. C. Barbourville, Ky. Dear Sir:—One of our field agents Mr. Will J. McKeown, expects to be in your city on Thursday afternoon April 17th.

We have written the men named on the enclosed list to come to the Red Cross Office at Barbourville, Ky. to meet Mr. McKeown. Will you not do all you possibly can to aid him in meeting and conferring with these men in regard to vocational training? We would also appreciate it if you would see that Mr. McKeown has desk or table accommodations at that time.

If you any other men in your immediate vicinity who would be interested in the training provided by the Federal Board, you may have them in for this conference.

Thanking you for your co-operation, we remain Yours truly,

W. F. Shaw,

Acting District Vocational Officer. John Crit Lawson, Barbourville, Ky. Frank Carty, Jarvis Store, Ky. Tilman Roark, Hensley, Ky. Henry Asher, Hector, Ky. James Bryd, Oneida, Ky.

The opening of the baseball season was celebrated this week with a double victory by Union College over Sue Bennett, London. The morning score was 17 to 16 and the afternoon game by a score of 2 to 1.

LUCKY

Items of Interest
From All Sections of the State.

Somerset.—L. E. Balfour, of Greenwood, was killed at Pear Creek, Tenn., when the engine of the train on which he was brakeman was derailed by a broken rail. He was standing on a coal car which was being backed by the derailed engine, and was thrown from the car and crushed under the wheels.

Frankfort.—In counties in this state where the assessment is more than $20,000,000, but does not reach $27,500,000, the County Tax Commissioner is allowed in excess of $20,000,000 if he employs a deputy. This opinion was given to Judge Lee Evans, of Clark county, by Assistant Attorney General Myatt.

Henderson.—The first case of sleeping sickness to appear in this city is that of Lucile Vickers, 3-year-old daughter of Walter Vickers. The child had recovered from an illness of influenza and has been in a deep slumber for eleven days. All efforts of physicians to arouse the young patient have been unavailing. No hope is held out of its recovery.

Frankfort.—Robert Collins, a young man of Versailles, who was convicted in the Woodford Circuit Court and fined $75, sentenced to 10 days in jail and disfranchised, was pardoned by Governor Stanley and relieved of the jail sentence and ban of disfranchisement. The fine, however, was not interfered with by the governor's pardon and was paid.

Louisville.—Conscience or fear has caused the thief who stole $2,000 worth of Liberty bonds, the property of John T. Lupton, manager of the stationery department of the John P. Horton Company, to return $1,500 of the bonds. They were received by Mr. Lupton at his office in the mail. The bonds had been placed in an envelope upon which the firm name and address were typewritten.

Madisonville.—Prisoners of the county jail have organized a court, and when prisoners are incarcerated they are tried and fined. So far none have been acquitted. As soon as a new prisoner is placed in jail the court convenes and a penalty of 25 cents or twenty-five blows with a razor strap is given the prisoner. The money is put into the prisoners' treasury to purchase towels, soap, stamps and writing material.

Lancaster.—Suit for $25,000 damages has been filed by W. H. Conn, of Wilmore, Ky., against the estate of the late Thomas E. Dishon, who was a son-in-law of Mr. Conn. Dishon, a company with his wife, Miss Lillian Conn, last July motored to the Conn home at Wilmore, and on returning to Lancaster where they reside on a suburban farm, shot and instantly killed Mrs. Dishon and then shot himself. He died a few days later.

Frankfort.—W. H. Swift, of New York, agent for the National Child Labor Commission, is here studying the Kentucky statutes on the subject in connection with a survey of the state being made by nine agents at the request of the Kentucky association. They are now working in Western Kentucky and by June 15 expect to have completed the survey of sixteen typical counties as to education, labor, public health and care of delinquent, dependent and neglected children.

Paris.—An order was entered in the Bourbon circuit court scratching from the docket the case of the People's Deposit Bank & Trust Co. as administrators of the estate of Mrs. Henry Curtis and as guardians of her infant son against the Paris Gas & Electric Co. and the Bourbon Home Telephone Co., the matter have been compromised. It was alleged that Mrs. Curtis was electrocuted last December by coming into contact with a wire of the telephone company which had become crossed with a high voltage wire of the lighting company. Her young son sustained severe burns. The two companies were jointly sued for $10,000 for the death of Mrs. Curtis and $7,000 for the injuries sustained by her son. The compromise awards $6,000 to Mr. Curtis and $2,000 to his son.

Stanford.—The body of Julian M. Fowle, who was killed at Knoxville, was brought here and taken to the home of his father, N. W. Fowle, on Logan avenue, where funeral services were held. The body was then taken to Lancaster and laid to rest. Mr. Fowle, who was a detective for the L. & N. railroad, was killed by one of his very best friends, Charles Strong, also in the employ of the company. The two had a discussion, when the lie was passed to Fowle, who knocked Strong down. As he arose he drew his pistol and fired twice, bullet No. 1 striking Mr. Fowle's right hand. The second entered his right side, inflicting the wound that caused his death in less than a dozen hours. Mr. Strong was taken to jail, where he spent the night, but was released on bail the next morning.

Harrodsburg.—The Harrodsburg Ice and Produce Company, a firm incorporated a short time ago with a capital of $25,000, is installing what is said to be the biggest incubator south of the Ohio river. It will hatch 2,420 eggs twice a week, will be heated by hot water and cooled by electric fans. The monster incubator was secured through the co-operation of the University of Kentucky and will hatch pure-bred eggs inspected by County Agent Collins Gentry. Many of the chicks will be given as prizes to the Mercer boys and girls' poultry clubs.

Mrs. W. M. Baker lately set out her flower bed at the Court House and limed some of the trees. This is good citizenship. She suggests that some of the Civic League ladies look after other beds.

Mrs. W. C. Meeks, formerly Miss Louise Jesson of Corbin, was visiting old friends in this city the first of last week. She left Wednesday for Little Rock, Ark., where she will make her home in the future.

Hon. Caleb Powers, former Congressman for this county, is going on the Chautauqua platform where his talent as an orator will give pleasure to thousands. He is hopeful of the entire Republican ticket in Kentucky.

Mrs. Geo. P. Ramsey, of Harriman, Tenn., says she greatly enjoys the Advocate as it seems like a letter from her old childhood home every week and a letter from relatives and friends. Mrs. Ramsey is a niece of John Sizemore, of Fighting Creek, and a grand daughter of Betty Sizemore, and is herself from near Barbourville.

Grant F. Helton, son of Albert Helton, of Cranes Nest, is home from Fort Douglas, Utah, where he served from May 10th, 1917, to March 26th of this year. He was at the War Prison Barracks Hospital and acted in the capacity of head cook. He says he did not starve the spies and five hundred German sailors who were interned, but he thinks some of the former should have been starved.

We are now ready to serve the public with an up-to-date line of fresh and home cured meats.

We have one of the most sanitary Butcher's equipments made and refrigerator counter display case.

All steaks and pork chops are 35c. Roasts from 20c to 35c according to cuts.

We buy only the best grade of fresh meats, following our custom in other lines.

We solicit your patronage.

The people of Logan Gap neighborhood met last Sunday and organized Sunday School at the school house. From all indications the school will be a success as the attendance and interest is fine for the beginning.

Mr. W. B. Sharp, of Mackey Bend attended Sunday School at Logan Gap Sunday.

Mrs. Lizzie Elliott, of Mackey Bend, visited her sister, Mrs. Louisa May of Clate, Saturday and Sunday.

Rev. J. W. Baker, of Prichard Branch, is at present an employee of the Whitfield Coal Co., Kitts, Harlan Co., Ky.

Mr. and Mrs. James L. Pope, of Lawton, Oklahoma, who have been visiting their children and other relatives of this county for the past few months have returned home.

Omer Prichard was the guest of Herman Elliott Saturday night.

Mrs. Daisy Baker was visiting Mrs. Phennie Prichard Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Hudson were in Barbourville Saturday buying cow feed and coffee.

Mr. Jack Logan is the owner of a fine mule colt. Look out you mule colt raisers Jack will meet you at the Knox County Fair!

Misses Neva and Ilena Elliott were visiting Misses Delora and Cleatie Prichard Sunday evening.

Business is on a boom on Prichard Branch this spring, with clearing new ground, logging, making cross ties, sowing oats, planting "taters," and gardening being the principle pursuits of industry.

Do You Sleep Well?

To be at his best a man must have sound, refreshing sleep. When wakeful and restless at night he is in no condition for work or business during the day. Wakefulness is often caused by indigestion and constipation, and is quickly relieved by Chamberlain's Tablets. Try a dose of these tablets and see how much better you feel with a clear head and good digestion.

Want to Feel Just Right?

Take an NR Tonight

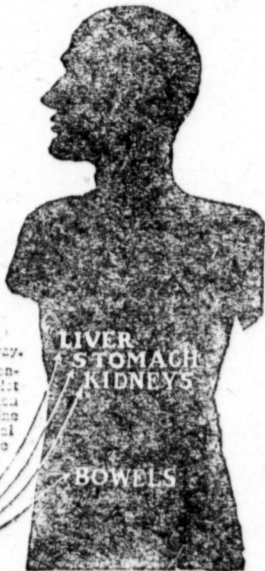

JUST TRY IT AND SEE how much better you feel in the morning. That "lousy," headachy, tired, don't-know-what's-the-matter feeling will be gone—you'll feel fine.

TROUBLE IS, your system is clogged with a lot of impurities that your over-worked digestive and eliminative organs can't get rid of. Pills, oil, salts, calomel and ordinary laxatives, cathartics and purges only force the bowels and prod the liver.

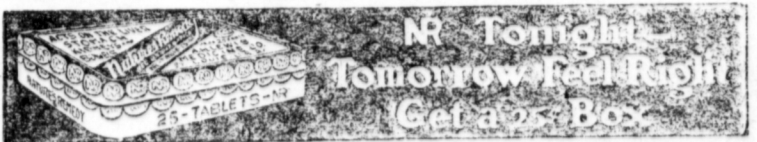

Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) acts on the stomach, liver, bowels and even kidneys, not forcing, but toning and strengthening these organs. The result is prompt relief and real, lasting benefit. Make the test. Nature's Remedy will act promptly, thoroughly, yet so mildly, so gently, that you will think nature herself has come to the rescue and is doing the work.

And oh, what relief! You'll be surprised to find how much better you feel—brighter, better every way. If habitually or stubbornly constipated, take a box of NR Tablets each night for a week. Then you'll not have to take medicine every day. Just a occasional NR Tablet after a while will be sufficient to keep your system in good condition—keep you feeling your best. Get a 25¢ Box

If I Were a Farmer.

If I were a farmer I would keep at hand a few reliable medicines for minor ailments that are not so serious as to require the attention of a physician, such as Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for coughs, colds and croup.

Chamberlain's Liniment for sprains, bruises and rheumatic pains.

Chamberlain's Tablets for stomach troubles, biliousness and constipation.

By having these articles at hand it would often save the trouble of a trip to town in the busiest season or in the night, and would enable me to treat slight ailments as soon as they appear, and thereby avoid the more serious diseases that so often follow.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE

By order of the Knox Circuit Court rendered at its September term, 1917, in the case of

John Percy, Plaintiff, against

W. H. McDonald, Ellen C. McDonald, M. E. McDonald, defendants, I will, as Master Commissioner, on the 28th day of April, 1919, same being County Court day, sell at the Court House door in Barbourville, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, the following described property, to satisfy the judgement in said case, amounting to $1080.00, with interest from August 9th, 1912, and $15.00 probable cost, with the following credits: March 12, 1912, $80.00; October 22, 1913, $50.00; March 20, 1913, $100.00; April 24, 1914 $100.00; August 26, 1915, $500.00; July—, 1917, $50.00.

A tract of land lying on Manchester Street, known as the old home lot, on which D. McDonald lived in his life time, and which lot was deeded to him by J. R. Hicks etc. by deed of record in the office of the Clerk of the Knox County Court, in Deed Book No. 5, at page 44. Also one certain lot on Manchester Street, being the same lot deeded to D. McDonald by J. H. Catron and wife, by deed of record in the office aforesaid, in Deed Book No. 16, at page 8. Also one other certain lot on Manchester Street deeded from J. R. Hicks and others to D. McDonald December 13, 1894, by deed of record in said office in Deed Book No. 18, at page 268. All of said lots of land are in Barbourville, Kentucky, and eight-ninths of each and all of same were mortgaged and placed in lien to the plaintiff by the aforesaid instrument, and the plaintiff is now adjudged a prior and superior lien upon same to secure and make certain his debt herein adjudged and the cost of this action.

Said property will be sold on a credit of six months, the purchaser to execute bond with approved security, bearing interest at six per cent. from date, having the force and effect of a judgement and retaining a lien on said property until the purchase money is paid.

WITNESS my hand, this the 6th day of March, 1919.

J. R. JONES, Master Commissioner, Knox Circuit Court.

Sale about 1 p. m. Purchaser must execute bond as soon as sale is over, or the property will be immediately put up and resold.

For Billious Troubles.

To promote a healthy action of the liver and correct the disorders caused by biliousness, Chamberlain's Tablets are excellent. Try them and see how quickly they give you a relish for your food and banish that dull and stupid feeling.

CONGRATULATIONS

Louisville, Ky., Mar. 24, 1919
Mr. Fred Burman,
Editor Mountain Advocate,
Barbourville, Ky.
My Dear Mr. Burman:-

I have just read your March 21st edition, and wish to congratulate you on this decided improvement in the Old Mountain Advocate.

The name of this paper is music to my ear, and I often wish that I was once again its editor and manager, but I am far removed from it at the present time, as the Editor and Manager of a much older and widely known journal. I came to the editorship and management of the Masonic Home Journal of September 1st, 1918, and it has been so pleasant the surroundings so cheerful and those with whom I am associated are so genial, that it seems as but yesterday since I came here.

Knox county gave me my birth, my father and my four sisters and four brothers, living, were born and reared in and near to the city of Barbourville. I spent nearly a half century in and near Barbourville, and of course the happiest days of my life passed by me like the fleetest shadow. My kinsmen, most part of them, live there, on a little mound just south east of the city my sainted father and mother sleep and they are near to me even though I am far away.

I have many warm friends there, those with whom I spent my boyhood days that have not crossed into the realms of the blist, are still there and I have been made to wonder if they ever think of me as I think of them.

Knox county is a great county, it has many things to be proud of. Barbourville and Knox county have sent forth to the world many noble men and women. The county of Knox has furnished Missouri a Governor. The United States Supreme Court one of its b.ainiest and best Judges. The American Congress with four of the best members ever sent there. We have furnished the world with them in every walk of life. In the political world Barbourville has always been in the front ranks. In the fraternal world, she has had her share of the men and women that held the highest position in the gift of the societies. Barbourville has Past Grand Master of the Great Masonic Fraternity, she has the present Grand Master of the state she has two past Great Sachems of the Improved Order of Redmen, a Past Grand High Priest of Kentucky Royal Arch Masons, a Past President of the D. of R. and the Lord only knows what all she has had, but she has never had anything that she was not entitled to.

In my dreams I can sometimes see the old city nestling down among the beautiful mountains on the banks of the Cumberland river, which winds its way through the fertile green valleys reflecting the sunbeams across the vaulted skies as it goes on and on until it becomes a mighty stream bearing on its bosom the burdens of men and beasts.

Yes I can see the stalwart forms of the manly men, whose every beat of the pulse is love for his neighbor, and, for whom he is constantly doing deeds of kindness. I can see the faces of the many women upon their stunted sidewalks on their daily rounds of helping to make the city, county and state a better place to live in.

Methinks I can hear the warble of the birds in their native groves, the humming of the bees as they hover over the clover blossoms to drain them of their nectar. I can hear the ringing of the old church bells that to me is the sweetest music ever formed by the acute sounds of vibration. The hum of the motors and the grinding of the wheels of the old street car as it rounds the curves toward the L. & N. depot as well as Uncle "Ikes" command, "Get up Bob."

I awake to find myself in a busy city of more than three hundred thousand people rushing hither and thither in their mad rush to keep with progress and civilization.

I again close my eyes and dream another dream. I try in vain to disbelieve that dream; I see the road that leads to the community of my boyhood days; I see the mud knee deep to a horse all the way, that should have a good pike road. I see also a few of the things that are found in every land and clime, in every neighborhood—it is the human parasite to civilization. That thing made in the likeness and image of God that is so void of principle and love of man that the meanest word they can say about their neighbor is too good. That class of fellows that parade their own goodness and honesty to others that would suffer as keenly as any brute is capable of bearing to drag down the character of men who have given a whole life of energy to make those about them happy and to make the world better by their having lived in it.

And then too, I see a few women, who are constantly on the pad, looking for the pal to whom she may tell a confidence of some scandal, or to air some good man's or woman's character. Barbourville and Knox county have some of this kind in it, but not as many possibly, as some other places, but any at all are too many.

I have digressed from the subject, I want to say to you that you are making a real newspaper out of the Advocate, here is my hand and I am for you, go to it. I hope soon to meet you, I am sure that you have no better friend than I.

BACK TO THE LAND.

All English speaking countries are taking part in arrangements to send those soldiers who care to go to farms. This includes our own country, New Zealand, Australia and the British Isles.

The greatest obstacle to land settlement and for keeping young men on the farms is the poor roads, lack of modern comforts, such as water on the premises, labor saving devices and up-to-date farming.

Good roads means easy and quick transportation, including the social side of life—they are an economy which often means the difference between profit and loss to the farmer.

A water system which includes barnyard and home makes labor easier, provides refreshing bathing facilities and doing away with outside toilets.

Labor saving devices mean quicker and better farming as well as greater diversification.

When a young man experiences a hand to mouth struggle year by year his thoughts turn longingly toward the city where modern conveniences exist and this longing increases year by year until the familiar face is no more seen at the family table.

A few public spirited farmers may do much in Knox county toward the uplift of us all. They can act as the yeast to the dough. Every community must accomplish its own regeneration and do its own progressing.

Let us go forward and make beautiful Knox county a banner county in which to live and rise on our drawbacks to better things.

The individual English income is somewhat lower than the American income and the taxes are higher, yet John Bull is digging up for bond issues—let us help Uncle Sam.

CHAPTER I

CARTER CORWIN had lunched alone at an exclusive little restaurant on a side street. A certain front-page article in the Observer—Falltown's only daily newspaper—had taken the edge off Corwin's appetite.

To be sure, the event had been impending—the somber shadow of war had long been stretching westward over the mighty expanse of water that certain credulous and trusting Americans had glibly and unthinkingly referred to as providing "immunity from invasion."

But the President's war message had come as a distinct shock despite the expectancy which had preceded it—and Corwin got up from the table with a conviction that the country faced a task the enormity of which could not be comprehended on the instant. And, he grimly assured himself as he walked down Main street, there were persons in America who would never comprehend it.

Nor could Corwin entirely grasp the mighty significance of the thing. He was convinced that the volume of production, hitherto fixed at certain limits, would have to be vastly increased; there would have to be extensions, enlargements, and intensive schemes to speed up the manufacture of munitions and the thousand and one implements of destruction which are the essentials of war; there would have to be rapid and hazardous adjustments; and in some cases a complete rebuilding of many industries. The whole country would have to work and save as it never worked and saved before—and the country would have to work and save under the handicap of a startling labor loss. For the khaki-clad stream that must be poured into devastated Europe would have to be recruited from field and office and factory. There was no magic by which an army could be raised through merely expressing the wish.

Filled with a vague disquiet, Corwin made his way down Main street until he reached Meridian avenue.

Main and Meridian formed the business center of Falltown. It was shortly after noon when Corwin reached the corner, and the hum of traffic had somewhat subsided.

Corwin had an appointment with Gary Miller, president of the Merchant's Bank; and he still had fifteen minutes to spare when he arrived at the corner. So he halted and leaned against one of the massive marble columns that supported the ornamented facade of the building.

The two streets formed a gigantic cross around which clustered many business blocks. They were the only business streets in Falltown, and the quiet residence sections surrounding exerted a subduing influence, imparting an atmosphere of peace and quiet. The peace-atmosphere seemed to be powerful today—at least to Corwin. For Corwin's reflections were running to contrasts just at this instant—the contrasts of the pursuits of peace and the appalling devastation of war.

One section of Main street ran eastward. Corwin could see the street, paved for some distance, broad and inviting, with the sunlight streaming upon it, until it merged with the gravel road that dipped gently into a valley beyond the edge of town. There it was lost. But it reappeared farther on, crowning a long slope and stretching on and on—a sinuous white ribbon in the glaring noonday sun—an artery that connected Falltown with the pulsing, throbbing world.

However, Corwin's thoughts did not stop with the end of the road—they went right on to the Atlantic coast, leaped the mysterious waters, and took him to the shores of France. And for a while, unleashing his imagination, and feeding it with the graphic accounts he had read in the newspapers, he looked upon the battlefields; saw the Hun hordes ravage the land; saw them sweep on in series of waves—a succession of finely-trained armies hurled at the world's throat.

It seemed to Corwin as he leaned against the marble pillar of the Merchant's Bank that he could hear the thunder of the mighty guns; he visualized the endless streams of stretcher-bearers returning from the front with their shattered human wrecks; the ruined towns and villages—he saw the ghastly horror unfold in grisly detail; he glimpsed the spectacle of a gallant nation sacrificing its wealth and its manhood to stem the human avalanche which was sweeping the world to its doom. The fate of the world was in the balance; and Corwin could see multitudes of faces turned toward the western horizon—pallid, drawn faces bearing marks of suffering, all turned westward in mute appeal, awaiting the decision of the mighty nation which held the future of the world in the hollow of its hand.

The picture had been vivid, and Corwin's chest swelled with impotent sympathy as the scene shifted and he gazed around at Falltown, basking in its atmosphere of peace and quiet.

"Why should we slaughter our youth to help England?"

Here was a contrast! Corwin could see far eastward, down Main street; by turning he could see equally as far westward; looking up Meridian avenue he could look for miles out into the fertile countryside; and down Meridian avenue he could see other fertile miles of land. But Corwin could see farther than that—and with closed eyes!

On all sides the country unfolded—plains and mountains and hills and valleys and virgin forest—miles of cultivated land, eastward, westward, north and south; with teeming millions of people in shop and factory and field and office—all dwelling in peace and fancied security, with unlimited power and wealth on every hand. While at the very doors of this paradise of peace a maniac lust for power, backed by millions of his equally fanatical subjects, was engaged in an orgy of murder and rape and destruction. And that demonic leader, pointing a reeking finger at the fair country of Corwin's birth, had declared, insolently: "I'll stand no nonsense from America after this war!"

Corwin grinned—it was the grim smile of the American fighting-man accepting a challenge to do battle. And the emotion that seethed in Corwin's heart was identical with that which pulsed through the veins of the sturdy youth of the country on the day their president solemnly drew the sword.

There was no gnawing disquiet in Carter Corwin's breast. He was an American. And whatever he was called upon to do, he would do—cheerfully, eagerly—not sullenly, as though he were making a sacrifice, but with the conviction that he had been endowed with a rare privilege.

He looked at his watch, found he had been dreaming for fifteen minutes—and entered the bank building where, an instant later, he was sitting at a leather covered mahogany table in President Gary Miller's private office, grinning, his face flushed, a proud light in his eyes.

CHAPTER II

CORWIN liked Gary Miller. Miller was big and loud-voiced, with a bluff, hearty manner and a ready smile. Corwin likewise believed in Miller. Perhaps that was because he had never had any direct dealings with the man. For some of Falltown's citizens could have acquainted Corwin with incidents which reflected very little credit on Miller's business instincts and ability. Those persons might also have called Corwin's attention to Miller's egotism. But as several of those persons who might have given Corwin that information were members of the board of directors of the Merchant's Bank, they did not think it wise to disseminate the burden of their convictions. For Miller certainly did attract depositors.

For several seconds following Corwin's entrance, Miller watched him with a genial smile.

"Well," said Corwin; "it is war."

Miller ceased smiling and settled back into his chair. He wrinkled his forehead, squinted his eyes and pursed his lips. If he struck a knotted fist against the lips he might have resembled Rodin's famous "thinker". He would have presented a gross caricature, a positive libel upon the master's creation, but it would have been the nearest counterfeit of a thinking posture Miller could have assumed.

But Miller's wrinkled brows and thoughtful eyes had impressed many of Falltown's citizens. They impressed Corwin; and when Miller turned and fixed Corwin with a penetrating gaze, grunting "H'm", through his pursed lips, a chill came over the young man's enthusiasm.

"Speaking in a strictly confidential manner, Corwin," said Miller, heavily; "I think it is a mistake—a monstrous blunder. The President is catering to the jingo element in this country. Why in thunder do we want to interfere in the affairs of Europe, eh?"

"The Kaiser's dream of World—"

"Bosh!" laughed Miller, heartily; "buncombe! You've been listening to the jingo orators. Let Europe work out its own salvation. Why should we squander our resources and slaughter the youth of our land to pull England's chestnuts out of the fire?"

"The Lusitania—" began Corwin. "Regrettable, but a mere incident of war," declared Miller. "Those things will happen. Germany must pay for that, of course—and will, no doubt. She has already sent her regrets. However, that incident of itself does not provide a basis for war. This country is becoming too idealistic!"

Corwin wondered if what Miller said were true. Corwin, like millions of his fellow Americans, had been content to trust the President. His own half-formed and hazy opinions had not seemed to get him anywhere. He was not a statesman, a diplomatist or a politician; and he had no knowledge of the inner workings of the machinery of government.

Miller's patronizing smile nettled him—made him feel insignificant, ignorant. Miller's position, bringing him into contact with men of large affairs, undoubtedly gave him an opportunity to learn things that the average citizen did not even dream of.

He saw a tolerant gleam in Miller's eyes—it was as though Miller was thinking that Corwin could not be expected to have definite opinions upon so abstruse a subject. Corwin even saw a glint of pity in the big man's eyes—a fatherly, benignant, humorous pity.

Corwin desired Miller's good opinion, and he divined that to persist in disagreeing with the man would be nonsensical. And perhaps the country was becoming too idealistic. Certainly the country should not be plunged into the appalling catastrophe of war on foreign soil for merely sentimental reasons.

Corwin was convinced that he had yielded too completely to the spell of patriotism which had held him in its clutch a few minutes before entering Miller's office. He knew that really big men never permitted their enthusiasm to rule them—stern repression, dignity and much deliberation were the mental weapons with which they fought the betraying ebullient emotions. They did not permit the world to know their thoughts.

Miller, Corwin was convinced, had signally honored him by taking him into his confidence, and he was conscious of a certain shame as he silently watched the big man.

Miller observed the collapse of Cor-win's structure of incipient enthusiasm, and his smile grew bland and condescending.

"To be sure," he went on; "we shall all be called upon to make sacrifices—if Germany accepts our challenge. We shall have to do things we have never done before, and we shall have to face unheard-of conditions—abnormal and startling. We shall have to raise money—billions! And of course we shall all do what we can. This bank, I presume, will have to bear its share of the burden. And we shall bear it cheerfully. And I do not want to be understood as opposing the war; I am merely not overly enthusiastic about it. But I am telling you this in strictest confidence, you know."

When Corwin emerged from the bank building a few minutes later—after concluding his business with Miller—he felt that his glowing pictures of a few minutes before had been daubed with too much color. Looking eastward as he paused for an instant on the corner of Main and Meridian, he could see no farther than the crest of the slope where the gravel road stretched. He made no fanciful mental flight to the battlefields of stricken France and Belgium—it all seemed vague and far, now.

Corwin squared his shoulders as though to adjust them to a new weight that seemed to be on them. And a fugitive grin wreathed his lips as he crossed Meridian avenue and walked down Main street toward his office.

Perhaps Miller had not meant exactly what he had said; he might have been slyly poking fun at Corwin for the latter's quick defense of the President. For Miller had declared his intention of helping as much as he could. Or perhaps Miller had been suffering from an attack of indignation. Corwin's grin grew to a broad smile.

Half way between Meridian and the next corner, Corwin heard a hurried step behind him, and a friendly hand was laid on his shoulder. He turned to see Morley Roberts, president of the Falltown Steel Products Company, smiling gravely at him.

Roberts fell into step with Corwin, and they proceeded down Main street.

Corwin had always felt flattered by Roberts' friendliness, and he had not failed to notice the man's frank interest in him. At the club—where Corwin spent many of his evenings—Roberts seemed to deliberately seek him out.

"Little groups of citizens were eagerly discussing the news."

Corwin had cultivated Roberts; for though Corwin had inherited considerable wealth and was not forced to search for clients, the prospects of one day getting the legal business that Roberts could throw in his way was not to be lost.

Roberts was tall, dark, with black, lambent eyes, straight, strong features and a hard mouth. He was broad shouldered and erect, suave, and smoothly courteous.

"Heard the news, Corwin?" he asked.

Corwin nodded. "Everybody seems to have heard it," he replied. He smiled, calling Roberts' attention to the little groups of Falltown's citizens who were eagerly discussing the new phase of the international situation. Newsboys were shrilling the momentous intelligence, dinnings it into the ears of probable customers; men were shouting to one another; a street car clacked by, loaded with grim-faced, eager-voiced men; the town seemed to have shaken off its mid-day lethargy, and was humming and throbbing with life.

Roberts smiled mirthlessly. "They'll be singing a different tune after a while," he said. "It is no joke, this war business. Why doesn't America keep out of it? What have we to gain through a war with Germany?"

Corwin was disappointed. He had expected Roberts to be enthusiastic over the prospect of war. For he had been led to believe that enormous profits were to be made in the manufacture of war munitions, and he knew Roberts' company was well equipped for such work. If Roberts had declared for war, Corwin would have been able to throw off the dulling influence of Gary Miller's words.

There was a slight venom in Roberts' voice, and Corwin looked keenly at him.

"I had an idea you'd be eager to participate in the war profits," suggested Corwin.

"That's the soul of America," snapped Roberts; "Money—always money. I shan't turn out a piece of war material—unless I am forced. This is England's war—let England fight it. Germany is friendly to America. Then why should America antagonize Germany? There are a great many Germans in America. Their influence is enormous, and I hope they exert that influence to defeat the commercial pirates who are forcing this declaration upon Germany. Already they are talking of a bond issue. The country should not finance such a war, and I hope the first bond issue will be a failure. That would force a quick peace and save thousands of our boys from being slaughtered for financial gain."

Corwin did not argue with Roberts—he had no heart for argument. And when he left Roberts and climbed the stairs to his office the weight that had seemed to settle on his shoulders after leaving Gary Miller bore upon him more heavily than ever.

He began to wonder if Miller and Roberts were not right, after all. It did seem, now that he reflected over the matter, that there was slight occasion for the action of the President in plunging the country into war. A former president of the republic had warned his countrymen of the danger of making entangling alliances with foreign powers; and here was the present President disregarding that sage advice.

A feeling of resentment stole over Corwin. The President's attitude hinted strongly of autocracy. It seemed to Corwin that a declaration of war might have been evaded. Corwin began to pick flaws in the President's diplomacy; he reflected cynically that the President was not of his political faith, and that he might be bringing on the war at the behest of powerful commercial interests that thirsted for enormous profits. Then from this fabric of suspicion he began to pluck strands—in the shape of rumored irregularities in administration affairs in Washington—that he wove into plausible beliefs.

There were several members of the President's cabinet that Corwin did not like—he had always thought them incompetent. If there was to be a war, why did not the President force the resignation of these men?

Within half an hour, meditating alone in his office, Corwin became a narrow partisan—convinced that his political party was able to conduct a war more efficiently than the one headed by the President. Feeding his partisanship with incidents that seemed to prove the soundness of his conviction, Corwin became, within an hour, a dissenter from all the principles enunciated by the President in his war message—and in his public utterances.

A hot rage seized Corwin; and he laughed, scoffingly. War! The idea was monstrous. Why declare war on Germany? Why, indeed? Miller was right; Roberts was right. The President was making a terrible blunder. The jingoes and war-producers were agitating this thing, and they had won the President to their side. It wasn't a question of patriotism, for Germany had not threatened to invade America; and the surest and quickest way to convince the President and the world that the great body of the American people could not be fooled by such buncombe was to refuse to finance such a war.

When Molly King, Corwin's stenographer, came in a few minutes later, her face was flushed, her eyes were bright and there was an air of suppressed excitement in her manner. She went immediately to her desk; but instantly wheeled in her chair and faced Corwin.

"Did you hear the news, Mr. Corwin? America will declare war on Germany!"

Corwin grinned cynically at her. "Bosh!" he said. "Why should America interfere?"

The girl gasped and stared at Corwin in amazement. Then, when she saw Corwin was in earnest, she raised her chin defiantly.

"Because America is America, Mr. Corwin," she returned, coldly. "If America did not go in, now! I should never be able to look another foreigner in the eyes!"

She flounced around in her chair and began to bang the keys of her typewriter with a viciousness that startled Corwin. The girl's sturdy patriotism was in striking contrast to his own feelings, and for a long time he sat, watching her, oppressed with a sensation of guilt—of something shameful and clandestine and unworthy.

ASK LADY YEAR OF BIRTH.

New York Judge Makes Ruling Expected to Save Witnesses From Embarrassment.

New York—Women chucked over a ruling of Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morschauser of Dutchess county during a will trial, still going on, that a woman need not answer when asked to state her age.

Relative are attacking the will of Mary Jane Harrison, who left about $50,000, on the ground of undue influence, and that the testatrix was not competent to make a will.

Mrs. Anna Sloan Lowers was called to testify about purchasing property from the aged testatrix. Attorney R. H. Barnett, for the contestants, asked her to state her age. J. R. Thompson, for the will, objected.

"Objection sustained," broke in the court. "It is not polite to ask a lady her age. You may ask her the year in which she was born. That gives you the desired information without embarrassing the witness."

Time to Part.

Chinese Porcelain Revival.

An effort is being made to revive the Chinese porcelain industry, which was at one period of great artistic value.

Study of Laughs.

One who has made a special study of the subject writes: "The Italian laugh is languid but musical, the Germans laugh in a deliberate fashion, the French are spasmodic and uncertain, the upper-class English guarded and not always genuine, the lower-class English explosive, the Scottish all classes hearty, and the Irish rollicking. The Chinese laugh is not so expressive as the European; it is usually a titter rather than a genuine outburst of merriment."

Magic Guard Against Rattlesnakes.

Camping out in a rattlesnake-infested district with no other protection for one's bed than an encircling horse hair rope would not give the average tenderfoot a feeling of security. A photograph in Popular Mechanics Magazine showed two campers making their bed on the Western plains surrounded by nothing more stable than one of these ropes, as it is well known in that region that rattlesnakes have an unconquerable aversion to crawling over a rope.

What The One Is Doing— The Other Should Do—And More

Officers and Directors Of The Two Companies Largely The Same

Get this straight—there are two companies! The one is the Kentucky Mansfield Lead and Zinc Syndicate, and the other is the Louisville Mansfield Lead and Zinc Company. It is the success of the former that has led to the organization of the latter—to do just what the former is already doing but on a larger scale. The officers and directors of the two companies are very largely the same.

It Is The Record Of The One That Makes The Other So Promising

The Kentucky Mansfield Lead and Zinc Syndicate is already in operation and is already paying dividends. It paid a monthly dividend of 2% in January, 3% in February and dividend checks of 3% are now going out for March. The Louisville Mansfield Lead and Zinc Company's holdings are in the same territory, are larger, will be operated in the same manner and should pay even larger dividends.

Certificate of Assay

"The entire sample used for assay. Fairly soft native rock and an easy milling ore, breaking clean which should give a high recovery. Sample accompanied by affidavit as to sample."

The above report was made by W. P. Taylor, the chemist, from samples taken by J. R. Sandage in the presence of Mr. C. O. Storm, Mrs. J. S. Long and Mrs. J. H. Havens, who swear to the taking of these samples on the property of the Mansfield Mining and Developing Company, before Joseph R. Pile, a Notary Public, of Joplin, Missouri.

The Louisville Mansfield Lead and Zinc Company is capitalized at $500,000.00—at $1.00 a share, fully paid up and non-assessable. A very large part of this has already been subscribed—indeed, the company is fully organized and is already sinking the first shaft for the first mill on one of the four tracts (of 40 acres each) on which it holds the leases.

These holdings of the Louisville Mansfield Lead and Zinc Company are at Mansfield, Missouri, where the Mother Lode of the famous Ozark district comes nearest the surface. The 40-acre tract on which the sinking of the first shaft has already begun is immediately adjoining that of the Kentucky Mansfield Lead and Zinc Syndicate.
